

A Personal Perspective on Membership

I first became acquainted with many of my mentors through my involvement in SARCA. It was in SARCA that I was able to meet and develop professional relationships with those who were leading the USAR while I was serving as a Colonel. I learned many lessons through observing their leadership styles and assimilating their values.

So SARCA gave me mentors, and it also broadened my horizons beyond my own unit and functional area. I learned how the USAR works, how the various organizations fit together to complement the Active Component--I got the "big picture" through SARCA.

--MG (Ret) Ron Lowe at his induction into the SARCA Hall of Fame

Why SARCA?

- ✓ SARCA is the only private military association whose sole focus is the Army Reserve.
- ✓ SARCA's professional development and informational programs are aimed at the needs of Army Reserve Colonels and General Officers.
- ✓ SARCA encourages members to bring promising field grade officers to our programs to help prepare them to become the senior leaders of the future.
- ✓ SARCA works closely with AUSA, ROA, MOAA and other military associations to help ensure effective legislative action in support of the needs of the Army Reserve and its soldiers.

Vision: SARCA is recognized as the Professional Organization for the senior Army Reserve officers and the vast majority of senior officers are members!

About SARCA

SARCA was organized in 1949 to serve as the professional association of Army Reserve senior leaders. Through the years SARCA has played an important role advocating for the Army Reserve, serving as a key resource for the Chief of the Army Reserve, and mentoring future general officers.

Discuss Key Issues with Policy Makers

SARCA meetings provide an opportunity for members to have open and collegial discussion with Army and DoD senior leaders, as well as speakers from outside the military community. Unlike many official conferences where hard questions are discouraged, at SARCA questions and expressions of opinion about the critical topics of the day are encouraged.

SARCA Dinners Are A Great Time To Socialize

Anyone with an interest in the USAR is welcome to join our LinkedIn Group!

Full SARCA membership is open to:

Officers who served as a General or Colonel in the Army Reserve

Still serving or retired

(AGR, TPU, IMA)

If you qualify, please send a note to sarcamembership@gmail.com with your name, rank, USAR unit, and your current status (currently serving or retired) to join at no cost!

SARCA Links

SARCA Membership Form -
<https://tinyurl.com/3rsowevz>

SARCA LinkedIn Group -
<https://www.linkedin.com/groups/13301354/>

SARCA Website -
www.sarcamembers.com

SARCA Email –
sarcamembership@gmail.com

Senior Army Reserve Commanders Association

SARCA

The Professional Association for the Senior Leaders of the U.S. Army Reserve

It's not just for those in a command position!

www.sarcamembers.com